WELCOME TO FENWAY PARK

We want to welcome you to friendly Fenway Park. Since Fenway Park opened in 1912 generations of families have come here from all over New England. That tremendous support built a family atmosphere that has been traditional here over the past 74 years.

The Red Sox have been a key franchise in baseball since the American League was founded in 1901. Boston was known as the Pilgrims at that time and played its home games at the Huntington Avenue grounds where Northeastern University now stands. The Red Sox nickname was adopted in 1907 and in 1912 the team moved into Fenway Park.

There have been cosmetic changes here over the years but the playing field is virtually the same today as it was in 1934. That winter new owner, Thomas A. Yawkey, put the park through a major reconstruction phase. The 23-foot-tall screen was put above the left field wall in 1936 and the bullpens were constructed in front of the bleachers in 1940. Arc lights were installed in 1947 and the messageboard in centerfield was part of construction project after the 1975 season that included a rebuilding of the left field wall, with padding added around the outfield walls as a safety measure. In 1982-83 luxury suites were built atop the grandstand roof.

Yet, throughout the years, the famous "Green Monster" wall, the intriguing angles and corners around the outfield, and the closeness of the crowd to the action have helped make Fenway Park an exciting and captivating place to watch baseball.

COACH

WALTER JOHN (WALT) HRINIAC #33

Age: 42, Turns 43 May 22; Born: May 22, 1943, North Andover, Mass. Ht.: 5-11; Wt.: 178. Green eyes, Blond hair. Bats: Left. Throws: Right. Home: North Andover, Mass.

Hriniaak is the Red Sox hitting coach. Over the years he has won respect throughout baseball for his work with many of the Red Sox hitters. Walter is a keen student of the game who devotes countless hours instructing and helping Red Sox personnel. Despite shoulder problems that necessitated surgery he is still recognized as one of the best batting practice pitchers in the game. This is Hriniaak's 10th season as a Red Sox coach.

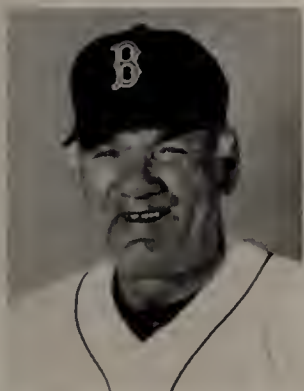

Before joining the Red Sox in 1977 Hriniaak put in 16 years as a player, coach and minor league manager. He managed Montreal's rookie team at Lethbridge, Alb., Can. in the Pioneer League in 1976 after starting the year as a coach with Denver. In 1974-75 he was first base coach with the Expos, following two years as manager of their Jamestown team in the NYP League.

Hriniaak signed a reported $50,000 contract with the Milwaukee Braves in 1961 after an outstanding career at Natick, Mass. H.S. He was an All Scholastic choice as a shortstop, football quarterback and hockey center. His 13-year pro playing career included two years with the Braves and Padres as a catcher in 1968-69.

He conducts a hitting school for youngsters for several weeks in the off-season.

COACH

WILLIAM CHARLES (FISH, BILL) FISCHER #34

Age: 55; Born: October 11, 1930, Wausau, Wis. Ht.: 6-0; Wt.: 210. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Beverly, Mass. Married: Valeria Hager.

1986 is Fischer's second year as the Red Sox pitching coach. He came to John McNamara's staff from Kansas City where he had been a minor league pitching instructor in 1984. Prior to that assignment Bill was the pitching coach for Cincinnati where he worked with McNamara in 1979-82 and with Russ Nixon in 1983.

Fischer was signed by the Chicago White Sox in 1948. His pitching career lasted 20 years, which included nine seasons in the major leagues. Along with the White Sox he also pitched for Detroit, Washington, the Kansas City A's and Minnesota. Bill served in the Marine Corps for two years (1952-54).

Fischer is known for his outstanding ability to throw strikes. He holds the major league record for most consecutive innings without giving up a base on balls, 84.1. In 1965 he pitched a 1-0 shutout for Indianapolis in which 70 of his 90 pitches were strikes.

Bill was a scout for the new Kansas City Royals from 1969-74 and was their minor league pitching instructor from 1975-78. After his stint in Cincinnati he returned to the Royals in 1984 serving in the same capacity as he did when he left. In 1976 he received the Ewing M. Kauffman Award for his outstanding contribution to the Kansas City organization.

MANAGER

JOHN FRANCIS (JOHN) McNAMARA #1

Age: 53, Turns 54 June 4; Born: June 4, 1932, Sacramento, Cal. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 175. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Natick, Mass. Married Ellen Goode.

The Red Sox finished 81-81 in John McNamara's first season in Boston. Seven major disabling injuries, including four on the pitching staff, hampered McNamara's managerial efforts. He used 79 different lineups, 18 different starting players and 13 starting pitchers. Despite the uncertainty of the pitching staff, McNamara's hurlers allowed the second least home runs, ranked third in strikeouts and the 4.06 ERA was the club's best since 1982.

On Oct. 18, 1984 McNamara was named the 36th manager of the Red Sox. He replaced Ralph Houk who retired after four years at Boston. McNamara is starting his 13th full year as a major league manager. Only Sparky Anderson (Detroit) and Gene Mauch (Angels) hold seniority over him among A.L. managers.

Entering 1986 McNamara's major league record was 832-886, including 329-332 in four years in the A.L.

McNamara managed the California Angels for two seasons. In 1984 the Angels finished in a second place tie with Minnesota at 81-81. In 1983 injuries crippled the Angels and they finished tied for fifth at 70-92. They were in first place as late as July 10, 1983.

McNamara was a minor league manager for nine years in the Kansas City A's organization before being named a coach with the A's in 1968 when they moved to Oakland. He has been in the major leagues ever since as either a manager or coach. John made his major league managerial debut with Oakland when he replaced Hank Bauer, Sept. 19, 1969. He led the A's to a second place finish in 1970.

His coaching stints include San Francisco (1971-73) and California (1978). He managed a young San Diego team from 1974 through May 28, 1977. The Padres record improved each year.

McNamara piloted Cincinnati from 1979 through July 20, 1982. He led the Reds to the N.L. West title in 1979 and in 1980 they finished only 3½ games out of first. In the strike-shortened 1981 season the Reds had the best overall record in baseball although they did not appear in post-season play.

McNamara was a minor league catcher and also pitched in 14 games over four years. He attended Sacramento State College and spent two years in the military.

COACH

JOSEPH MICHAEL (JOE) MORGAN #35

Age: 55; Born: November 19, 1930, Walpole, Mass. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 180. Green eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Left. Home: Walpole, Mass. Married Ootile Glebus. Children: Cathy 10/15/58, Joe Jr. 7/17/63, Bill 7/7/64, Barbara 12/23/66.

Joe Morgan is a true baseball pro who has been involved in the game as a player, coach and manager. Joe, now in his 35th professional year, joined the Red Sox as first base coach last season after spending two years as a Boston scout.

Morgan joined the Red Sox organization in 1974, and managed Pawtucket from 1974-82. In 1977 he was voted International League Manager of the Year. He captured Manager of the Year honors in 1966, 1969 and 1973. Joe was a coach with the Pirates in 1972.

A graduate of Walpole High School and Boston College (1953), Joe signed with the Boston Braves organization in 1952. He spent 15 seasons as a minor league infielder-outfielder, with three .300 seasons. Morgan had short stints in the majors with the Milwaukee Braves and Kansas City A's in 1959, Philadelphia and Cleveland in 1960, Cleveland in 1961 and St. Louis in 1964.

RENE GEORGE (RENE, LACH) LACHEMANN #36

Age: 40, Turns 41 May 4; Born: May 4, 1945, Los Angeles, Cal. Ht.: 6-0; Wt.: 200. Brown eyes, Blond hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Mesa, Ariz. Married Lauri Thomas. Children: Jim 11/25/64, Britt 9/25/68.

Lachemann returns for his second year as the Red Sox third base coach. He previously managed Milwaukee in 1984, and Seattle from 1981-83, after he replaced Maury Wills, May 6, 1981. He compiled a 140-180 record with Seattle, including a fourth place finish in 1982, and was 67-94 with Milwaukee. Lach is a diligent worker who keeps detailed batting and pitching charts that provide useful information to the team's players and coaching staff.

Lachemann was signed by the Kansas City A's in 1964. His only full season in the majors was 1965 as a catcher with the A's, managed by Haywood Sullivan. He spent parts of 1966 (K.C. A's) and 1968 (Oakland A's) in the majors. His minor league manager in 1966 was McNamara. He retired as an active player following the 1972 season and began managing in the Oakland system the next season.

Lachemann managed Burlington (A), 1973-74, Modesto (A), 1975, and Chattanooga (AA), 1976. He managed Seattle's AAA team at San Jose (1977-78) and Spokane (1979-81) until his promotion to the big club.

Rene spent five seasons managing in the Latin Winter Leagues from 1976-80 and earned Manager of the Year honors in 1976. He has a 509-598 minor league managerial record and a 207-274 record in the majors.

Rene's older brother, Marcel, is currently the pitching coach of the California Angels. Another brother, Bill, is managing for Quad Cities in the Angels' system.

A GREAT YEAR

by Ed Walton

When the 1940's arrived Tom Yawkey's Jersey Street team held a promise that Boston fans had not experienced since Babe Ruth roamed Fenway Park in 1918. The bubble of optimism burst suddenly one early December morning in 1941. Off to the four corners of the world marched the youthful nucleus of that dream.

When the Red Sox obtained Don Baylor from their long-time rivals, the New York Yankees, a week before the start of the current season in exchange for designated hitter Mike Easler, there seemed to be a surprising amount of apathy among Sox fans about the trade.

The attitude seemed to be that it was just a trade of one aging DH for another. But anyone who had seen Baylor terrorize the left field wall at Fenway Park practically every time he came to Boston with the Orioles, A's, Angels and Yankees over the past 14 seasons knew better.

Baylor has always been the prototypical Fenway hitter, a natural pull hitter who never had to adjust his swing for a visit to Fenway or adjust it back when leaving. He would be a dead pull hitter whether he was playing in Comiskey Park, Tiger Stadium or Yankee Stadium, and that's what he would be at "Friendly Fenway."

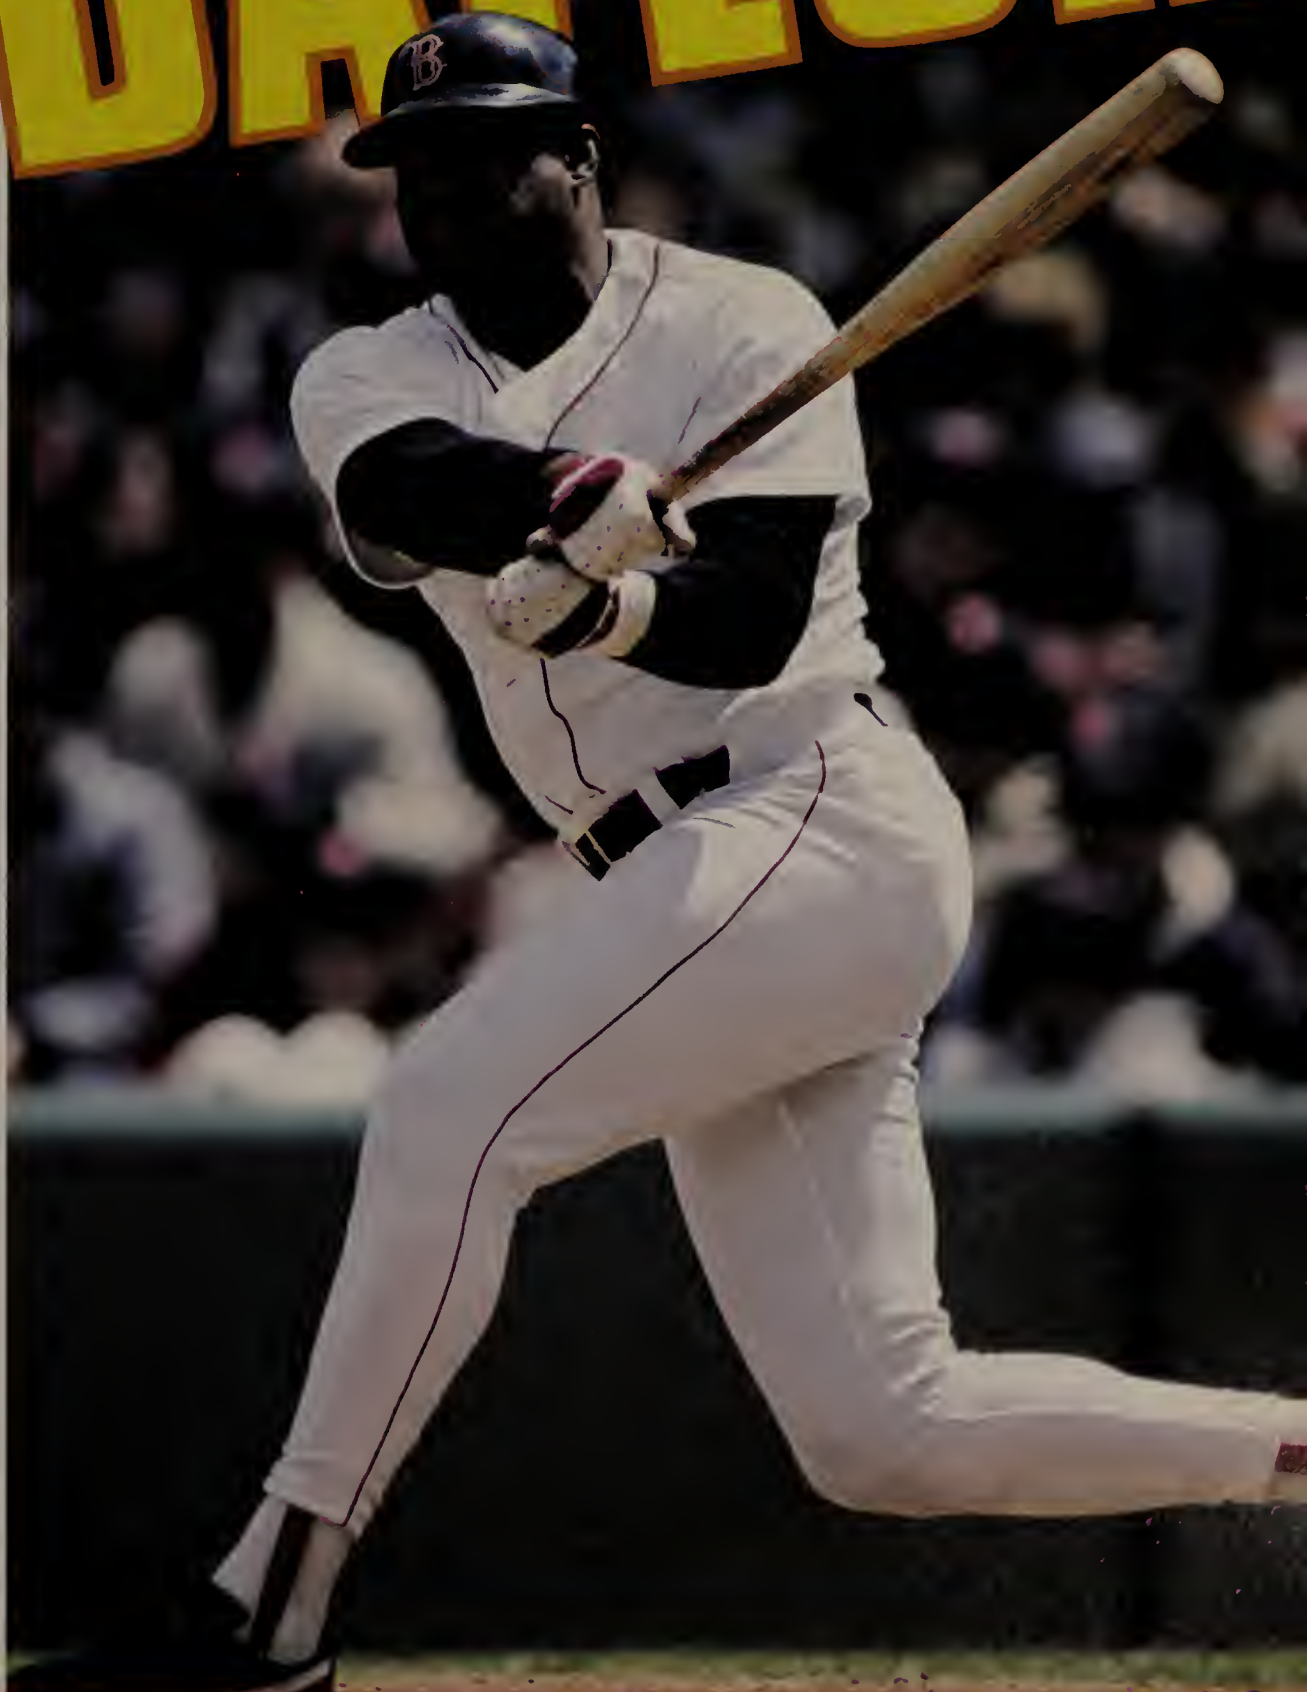

The trade was welcomed by the 36-year-old Baylor, who had suddenly found himself on the outside looking in as far as the Yankee starting lineup was concerned. He platooned at the DH spot the last two months of the 1985 season with the Yankees, and at the very best was expected to platoon again this year, maybe not even that.

Baylor and Yankee owner George Steinbrenner weren't exactly the best of friends, especially after Baylor turned down a trade to the Chicago White Sox for Carlton Fisk. Chicago's loss was Boston's gain.

As Baylor put it, "Of course, I was happy to hear about the trade. I went from playing only part-time to playing every day in Boston. Getting to play in a park which is probably the best in the league for my hitting style just makes it even better."

And Baylor got his chance to show his gratitude to the Red Sox organization for freeing him from a distasteful situation in New York right away.

DON BAYLOR

On Opening Day in Detroit, he slammed a game-tying two-run home run into the upper deck in Tiger Stadium in the seventh inning, just to show he hadn't lost his knack for the clutch hit which has always been one of Baylor's trademarks.

And he also didn't take long to demonstrate that knack for the home fans. In the third home game of the season against the defending World Champion Kansas City Royals, Baylor smashed a tie-breaking grand slam home run off Royals' reliever Steve Farr in the 8th inning to give Roger Clemens and the Red Sox a 6-2 victory which prevented a Royals' sweep of the opening home series.

That win seemed to get the Sox back on track just when they were starting to slip, and they played much better from that point.

That Baylor would get a big hit in Fenway was no surprise since he came into this season with a .350 lifetime average there and 17 homers, second only to Reggie Jackson among active visiting players.

"Don Baylor is a proven veteran hitter who has been doing his job very well for a lot of years. His swing is perfect for this park, and I expect him to take advantage of the wall. Then, when you add his personal traits, which have helped every club he's ever been on, he's just a great addition to this ballclub."

Those personal traits can best be summed up in the phrase "A True Leader." That leadership begins with the impeccable example of a man who still works as hard as anyone even though he's a long-time established star in the game.

When he was struggling at the plate early in the season, Baylor put in long hours trying to get out of his slump. Those people who get to the park three hours early often saw Baylor head out to the batting cage under the center field bleachers to work with hitting coach Walt Hriniak.

Baylor has always led as much by example as by voice. The younger players on the Red Sox seem to genuinely enjoy having Baylor as a teammate. Utility-man Steve Lyons and catcher Rich Gedman both have lockers near Baylor's in the Sox clubhouse at Fenway Park and are benefiting from that.

Lyons said, "Don's one of the best in the business at running the bases, especially at breaking up double plays. I'd be crazy not to learn from him, because he's one of the best at it."

Gedman said, "He really knows the game. You can learn a lot just by listening to what he has to say. When he says something it means something."

Baylor has brought the famed "Kangaroo Court" to Boston. It first was popularized in Baltimore under Frank Robinson and Elrod Hendricks, and Baylor was an integral part of it. It's a system by which the players fine one another small sums of money for a variety of playing offenses, ranging from not getting a runner home from third or executing a bunt or hit-and-run, to an assortment of other violations involving dress, deportment, etc.

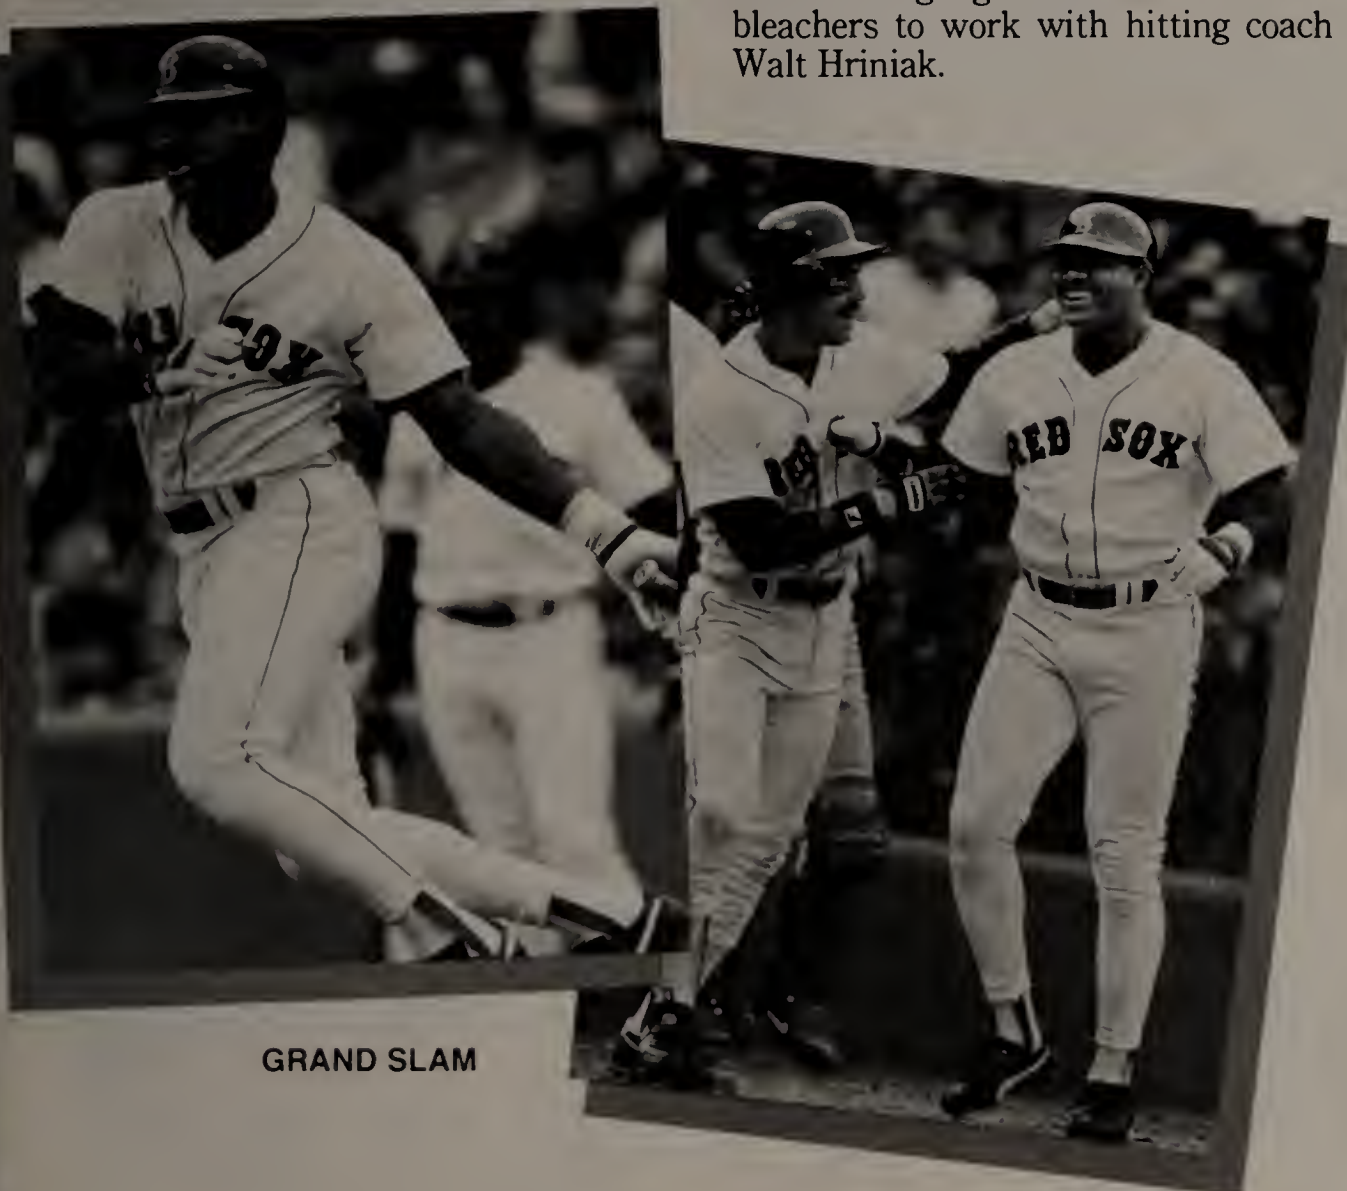

It's all done in good humor and has always been great for team spirit on the teams Baylor has played with in the past. Baylor is the judge and slugging star Jim Rice collects the "fines." Try to tell THOSE two men you're not going to pay your fine!

Certainly Baylor has such great stature among his peers for a number of reasons. The quality person he is has helped him become one of the most highly-respected men in the game.

He's been the American League player representative for three years and was a player rep when he was with California.

A lot of the respect for Baylor comes from the outstanding career he's had. He needs 16 home runs in 1986 to reach 300 and passed the 1,000-RBI mark for his career with a home run off Oil Can Boyd of the Red Sox in Yankee Stadium last April 23.

He was the American League MVP with California in 1979, when he carried the Angels to their first-ever A.L. West title. Baylor hit 36 homers, drove in 139 runs and scored 120 runs

BIRDIE TEBBETTS

Wore No. 8 in 1947-50

THEN: He came to the Red Sox in the midst of the 1947 season after more than eight years with the Detroit Tigers. He played in Boston through the 1950 season, earning All-Star selection in 1948 and 1949. While George “Birdie” Tebbetts played just 369 games in his nearly four years with the Red Sox, he was named the club’s No. 1 all-time catcher by a fan poll in 1969 and demoted to the all-time second team behind Carlton “Pudge” Fisk when the fans were polled again in 1982. “It was great coming back to Boston.”

“We had great clubs while I was here. I didn’t contribute anything to the word ‘great,’ we had outstanding ball clubs and outstanding years and I just benefited by what some of the other guys did. I appreciate the fans’ vote and I am very proud of the fact that at that time, and today, I am still a New England guy. I was born in Burlington, Vt., brought up in Nashua, N.H. after we moved there when I was about one year old. It was like coming home when I came to the Red Sox. I remember coming down here from New Hampshire when I was in high school and standing in the outfield when Babe Ruth was playing. I was brought here to work out with the Braves and the Red Sox and the Pittsburgh club when they came in. One of the local clubs advised me not to play pro ball.”

Tebbetts, dubbed the “Nashua Thrush” by the media in his playing days, finished his major league playing career with Cleveland in 1952 and went on to manage in Cincinnati, Milwaukee and Cleveland for 11 seasons, compiling a .270 lifetime batting average in 1111 games as a player and a .512 percentage in 1528 games as a manager. His best marks as a player were a .310 average with eight home runs in 79 games in 1950 and 68 RBI, also with the Red Sox, in 1948. As a manager, his Cincinnati club finished third in 1956 after two seasons in fifth place.

The seasons 1942 through 1944 saw the cream of Boston's players join Uncle Sam's team. The 1945 Red Sox were a rag-tag collection of war-time ball players — aging veterans and untrieds. There were, however, some decent performers, highlighted by the return from the air force of young righthanded pitcher Dave "Boo" Ferriss. He took the baseball world by storm with 22 consecutive scoreless innings, four shutouts in his first 10 wins, and a 21-10 season with a 2.96 ERA.

Ferriss was joined by the slick fielding infielder Eddie Lake and genuine outfielders George Metkovich and an aging "Indian Bob" Johnson. Despite any heroics this crew could supply the Sox finished just one place above the cellar, some 17½ games behind the champion Detroit Tigers. They were quite frankly one of the worst-ever Red Sox teams.

The 1946 season brought a complete reversal as the Sox stormed back to one of their best seasons, winning 104 games (a 33 game improvement), the largest turn-around ever posted by a major league team.

The nation was beginning to settle down to the return of peace time. A lot was happening in and around Boston during that spring and summer of 40 years ago. It was a joyous period that Boston baseball buffs had longed for since the end of World War I. Although it wasn't understood at the time life in Boston would never be the same. The changes were ushered in on a magic carpet ride that swept up New England as it never had before.

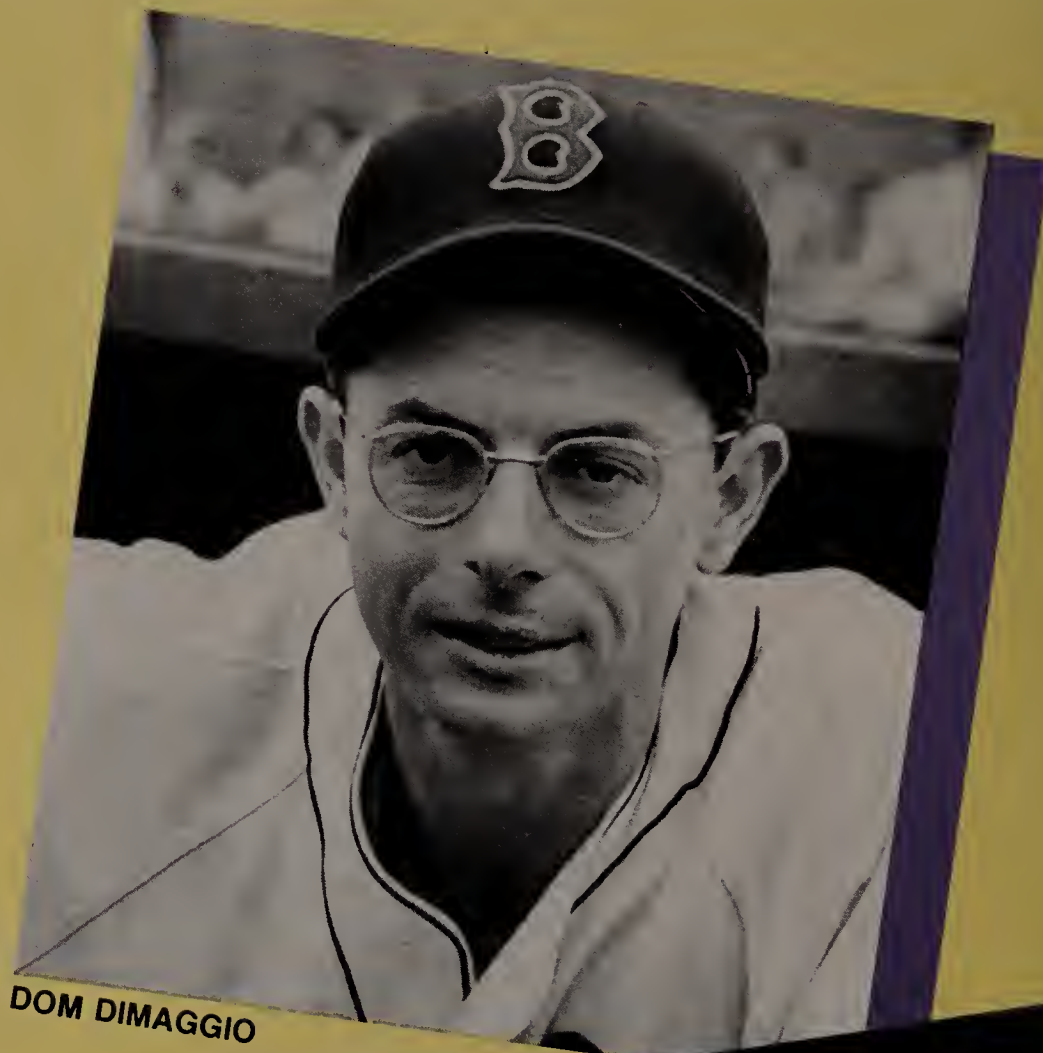

Fenway Park again became the mecca for baseball fans. Jim Britts' broadcasts became household necessities as his voice crackled over Philco's, Motorola's, R.C.A's and Zenith's. The Red Sox band wagon was off and running, taking away the cares of wartime on its ride into the future. For those who experienced it the memories will linger forever.

What caused this reversal of fortunes? Simple — returning from the service were shortstop Johnny Pesky, second baseman Bobby Doerr, outfielders Ted Williams and Dom DiMaggio, catcher Hal Wagner and hurlers Tex Hughson, Joe Dobson, Mickey Harris and Earl Johnson, among others. Only eight players from the 1945 club remained in '46 and of those only Ferriss, Metkovich, Leon Culberson and Tom McBride made any significant contributions.

In Detroit a decision had been made to trade away the aging and slumping slugger Rudy York. The Sox agreed to take the big first baseman and send Lake to the Tigers. As it turned out, this deal may have been the most important move they made. Later acquisitions of third baseman Pinky Higgins, pitchers Bill Zuber and Bob Klinger and outfielder Wally Moses added to the success.

APRIL 29, 1986 — A NIGHT TO REMEMBER

Roger Clemens struck out 20 batters in a 9-inning game (a 3-1 win over Seattle), a feat never before accomplished in the 111 years of major league baseball.

Among the highlights of that historic game:

- Set a major league record with the 20 strikeouts in 9-innings (previously was 19 shared by Nolan Ryan for Angels in '74, Tom Seaver for Mets in '70, Steve Carlton for Phillies in '69, & Charles Sweeney for Providence in 1884).
- Set a Red Sox record for most strikeouts in a game (previously held by Bill Monbouquette, 17 in Washington May 12, 1961).
- Set a Fenway Park record for most strikeouts in a game (previously held by Jack Harshman of the White Sox, 16 on July 25, 1954).
- Had 8 consecutive strikeouts from the 4th inning into the 6th to break the Red Sox record and tie the American League mark (shared with Ron Davis & Nolan Ryan, who has done it twice).
- Threw 138 pitches: 97 strikes, 41 balls.
- Struck out the side 3 times (1st, 4th, 5th).
- Did not walk a batter and allowed just 3 hits.
- Went to 3 balls on just 6 hitters, none after the 4th inning.

Fan Voting For All-Star Teams Continues With Major Change on Ballot in 1986

Continuing a tradition that began with the first All-Star Game, fan balloting for the 57th Major League Baseball All-Star Game — to be played in Houston July 15 — will be conducted at major and minor league ballparks until July 6.

Fans throughout the United States and Canada will again select the starting players for the American and National League All-Star teams by using 'punch-out' ballot cards. This is in contrast to the fan balloting in 1933 when a handful of newspapers carried ballots for selecting players for the first All-Star Game.

This year Baseball has made the first major change in balloting since 1979 when the number of players on the ballot was increased from 128 to 144. On the 1986 ballot, a player from every team will be listed at each position, including outfielders.

The '86 All-Star ballot will feature 208 players and will include a record 10 rookies.

Atlanta center fielder Dale Murphy is in a position to become the first player since 1979 to repeat as winner of the All-Star Top Vote-Getter Trophy. Murphy received 1,425,952 votes last year, edging Cal Ripken, Jr. of Baltimore (1,398,901). George Brett of Kansas City, Ozzie Smith of St. Louis and San Diego's Steve Garvey also topped 1.3 million.

Another Braves' hero, Hall of Famer Hank Aaron, led the voting the first two years (1970-71) and Johnny Bench of Cincinnati set the pace the next two. The only repeater since was Rod Carew, who won four times in all, in 1975, 1977 and 1978 while with Minnesota and with California in 1979.

A year-by-year listing of the top vote-getters:

1970	Hank Aaron, Atlanta
1971	Hank Aaron, Atlanta
1972	Johnny Bench, Cincinnati
1973	Johnny Bench, Cincinnati
1974	Reggie Jackson, Oakland
1975	Rod Carew, Minnesota

1976	Joe Morgan, Cincinnati
1977	Rod Carew, Minnesota
1978	Rod Carew, Minnesota
1979	Rod Carew, California
1980	Davey Lopes, Los Angeles
1981	George Brett, Kansas City
1982	Gary Carter, Montreal
1983	Robin Yount, Milwaukee
1984	Steve Garvey, San Diego
1985	Dale Murphy, Atlanta

While both Rod Carew (18) and Reggie Jackson (11) have won more All-Star Game starts, George Brett has 10, all in succession and all at third base, the longest active streak in baseball. Carew, who started three times before fan balloting was reinstated in 1970, had a string of 18 consecutive starts before Eddie Murray of Baltimore out-pollled him by 50,000 votes last year.

Carew — nine consecutive starts at first base — and catcher Johnny Bench shared the record for most consecutive starting selections at one position before Brett.

The Campbell Red Sox Baseball Radio Network is again carrying every Red Sox game on radio in 1986 with Ken Coleman and Joe Castiglione sharing the microphone for the fourth season. Coleman has more than 35 years of broadcasting experience and has covered the Red Sox on radio and TV for 17 years. The Quincy, Mass. native began his career broadcasting the Rutland (Vt.) Royals of the now defunct Northern League. He then went to Cleveland where he did the Browns (NFL) for 14 seasons and the Indians for 10.

In 1966 Ken returned to Boston for his first stint with the Red Sox (1966-74) on both radio and TV. After covering the Cincinnati Reds on TV for four years, he came back to Boston once again for the 1979 season on radio, and has been here ever since.

Ken has announced seven NFL championship games on network television and also did the 1967 World Series on NBC. He has been involved with the Jimmy Fund since 1966, and is now its coordinator for donor relations.

Castiglione is in his fourth season on Red Sox radio. Like Coleman, he previously covered the Cleveland Indians (1979-80-82) on both radio and TV. He worked the Milwaukee Brewers' games on cable TV in 1981. The Hamden, Conn. native has announced the Cleveland Cavaliers (NBA) on cable, and has done college basketball for New England Sports Network the past two winters. He is a graduate of Colgate University.

Ken Coleman and Joe Castiglione

Every Red Sox game will also be shown on television this season, with TV38 carrying 75 games and New England Sports Network (NESN) showing 84 on cable. The other three games are scheduled on network television.

TV38, and its New England network, is in its 12th season of Red Sox coverage, with Ned Martin and Bob Montgomery together for the fifth year.

Martin has been covering the Red Sox on TV and radio for 26 consecutive seasons, including the last eight with TV38. Only Ernie Harwell of the Tigers (27 years) has been with one club for a longer consecutive span.

Ned began his broadcasting career in Charleston, West Virginia, covering the American Association team there for five years. He joined Curt Gowdy in Boston for the 1961 season and has been here ever since, working with ten different partners in that time.

Martin announced the A.L. playoffs on CBS radio four years, and also did the 1975 World Series on television for NBC. The Duke graduate is also an accomplished football announcer, having done play-by-play for the Patriots (1965), Dartmouth (7 years), Harvard (6 years), and Yale (2 years).

Montgomery has been on the TV38 crew for five seasons, following his retirement as a player. He was a valuable reserve catcher for the Red Sox, appearing in 387 games during his 10 year major league career. He signed with Boston in 1962 and came to the majors in 1970. An arm injury forced his retirement during spring training in 1980.

Monty did a local radio talk show, as well as some work on the Red Sox radio broadcasts, prior to joining the television team in 1982.

NESN is covering the Red Sox for the third year, with Martin and Montgomery handling the announcing for their 84-game schedule. NESN rebroadcasts each of its Red Sox games as a convenience for its subscribers who may have missed the live telecast. Evening games are shown again at 11:30 p.m., while afternoon games are rebroadcast at 7:30 p.m.

It's Easy to Keep Score

Baseball Shorthand, as used by the news media to render every game more enjoyable to baseball enthusiasts. All players are numbered and all plays recorded by symbols. For symbols and example of system, see below.

CODE NUMBER OF PLAYERS AS FOLLOWS

Pitcher	1	Second Baseman	4	Left Fielder	7
Catcher	2	Third Baseman	5	Center Fielder	8
First Baseman	3	Shortstop	6	Right Fielder	9

SYMBOLS FOR PLAYS

Single	—	Fielder's Choice	FC	Passed Ball	PB
Double	=	Hit by Pitcher	HP	Balk	BK
Triple	≡	Wild Pitch	WP	Struck Out	K
Home Run	≡≡	Stolen Base	SB	Base on Balls	BB
Reached base on error	E	Sacrifice	SAC	Force Out	FO

The lower left-hand corner of the scoring block should be considered as home plate. Progress is counter-clockwise with progress to first base indicated in lower righthand corner, to second in upper righthand corner, to third in upper left-hand corner and to home in lower left. In example to left, batter reached first on an error by the second baseman, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball. It is convenient to encircle all runs as shown so that scoring plays may be seen at a glance.

FENWAY PARK GROUND RULES

Red Sox Cooperate with Fenway Neighbors

The Red Sox reaffirm their commitment to cooperating with their neighbors in working out various community concerns. We encourage all of our fans to cooperate also by not littering, vandalizing or in any way disregarding the rights of the neighbors who surround Fenway Park. The Red Sox also urge all fans to use the parking lots in the vicinity of the stadium and to use private buses or public transportation whenever possible.

Please refer to the transportation map on Page 44 for further information on easy access to the ball park. Thank you.

DON BAYLOR

in that sensational year. He also stole 22 bases that year, and stole at least 22 bases eight straight years, with a high of 52 for Oakland in 1976.

His 141 homers in six years with the Angels made him the team's all-time home run leader until Bobby Grich passed that total last season. Baylor also played a big part in the Angels' other post-season appearance in 1982 when he drove in 93 runs, and then set a record which still stands for a five-game playoff series, when he had 10 RBI in the A.L. championship series with the Milwaukee Brewers.

If you think Baylor is over the hill just because the Yankees put him on the back burner, think again.

Even though Baylor was only DHing against left-handed pitching the last two months of the 1985 season, he still hit 23 homers and had 91 RBI. He surely would have passed the 100-RBI mark for the second time in his career had he not been platooned.

Although he played his last three seasons in Yankee Stadium, a ballpark not suited for his hitting skills, Baylor still averaged 24 homers and just under 90 RBI with the Yankees.

That's why Red Sox fans have ample reason to think they will see a lot of good things from the man the Sox acquired just a week before the start of this season.

The Red Sox have the consummate professional in Don Baylor. He has helped improve the atmosphere in the Red Sox clubhouse just as much as he should improve the Red Sox lineup by adding another right-handed power hitter to the order. That was one big reason Red Sox general manager Lou Gorman made the trade, to balance off the batting order.

This is a year Red Sox fans can totally enjoy watching Baylor hit and play at Fenway Park. Because now, he's hitting for the Red Sox, not against them. That's good news not only to the fans, but also the Red Sox pitchers who should breathe a sigh of relief at not having to face him any more.

Two new all-stars join the line-up.

Now you can enjoy the richer chocolate taste of chewy, nutty Baby Ruth and crispy, crunchy, peanut-buttery Butterfinger while you enjoy the game. Look for them both at the concession stand.

EQUITABLE BRINGS THE OLD-TIMERS HOME.

THE EQUITABLE OLD-TIMERS' SERIES

Things have changed.

Hot dogs used to be 5¢. The season was only 154 games long. And kids could see a doubleheader for half a buck.

What hasn't changed, though, is America's love for baseball's greats. At Equitable, we share the feeling and are proud to be the sole sponsor of the first official old-timers' series.

Games are played on weekends from May through September and are held at all 26 Major League ballparks. For the first time ever, fans in every town can see their childhood heroes take to the field.

This is just another one of our commitments to professional baseball. In fact, we've been providing financial opportunities to the Major Leagues since 1947.

Maybe you should touch base with us and see what opportunities we can provide for you.

The Equitable Old-Timers' Series. See the legends come home, where they belong.

BIRDIE TEBBETTS

NOW: Birdie Tebbetts is as active today as he ever was in baseball, working as a scout for the Cleveland Indians and travelling almost continuously on a schedule that would land most men his age in a rest home. For example, at the start of this season he came north from Florida, where he now makes his home, by way of Baltimore, Cleveland and Chicago, spending three days at Fenway watching the Red Sox and the White Sox, and headed back to Florida. "I do what is called double-checking the outstanding prospects. I went into scouting for the Mets in the Florida area after getting through managing and when Gabe Paul went to the Yankees, I went with him. I stayed with New York until Gabe went to Cleveland. I'm going back to Florida to scout the outstanding high school and college kids there. We draft second and we'd like not to make a mistake in our draft."

Though he suffered a series of heart attacks while managing in Cleveland, Tebbetts doesn't confine his travels to the continental U.S., either. "I've done some work in the Dominican Republic in the winter, scouting and signing Latin players." He also manages to hit Fenway Park and California periodically so he can spend some time with his grandchildren. "I'm a frequent traveller on every airline, I put 40,000 miles on one of them last year. I love to come into Boston. We have our Triple-A club in Old Orchard so I can stop off in Goffstown, N.H. and visit my grandchildren and stop in Nashua to see my sister who is a retired schoolteacher. I don't mind travel; wherever the heat is, that's where I'll be. My wife, Mary, travels with me when she can. We manage to be together without being home. You don't have much time off, but I don't want much time off. I'm conditioned to work. I never have been out of baseball and I hope I never will be."

MEMORIES: Birdie Tebbetts has a remarkable memory about his lifetime in baseball but the portly former catcher is a little hazy when it comes to discussing his age. The "Baseball Encyclopedia," the bible of facts in this business, lists him as being born on Nov. 10, 1912 in the playing section and Nov. 10, 1909 in the managerial section. But Birdie insists both are wrong. "I just passed 65. The encyclopedia is wrong. When we first broke in, age was a very big factor. The older you became, the younger you tried to get. Sometimes records got lost. Mine got lost. My sister got upset because she became older than me. Besides, we don't talk about my age."

"My area of scouting is to scout wherever it looks like we're going to make a deal. What it means is that when we scout a major league club, we might drop down to their Triple-A club or no lower than their Double-A club if they couldn't satisfy us at the major league level, to see if they have a prospect who could help us. I do mostly double-checking."

There are guys, whom I think are the backbone of baseball, the scouts who have been in the free agent business all their lives. My work is mostly looking at a ball player specifically to find out if the Cleveland ball club would be better if we had him. That leads to a lot of funny things. We have a third baseman, (Brook) Jacoby and he's a wonderful player, he's going to be a great one. So it doesn't make any difference how good your third baseman is, I don't want him if he can't play someplace else. That's the difference between a major league scout and a free agent scout. They scout a player by the numbers, we scout them by the need."

Tebbetts has vivid memories and strong opinions about the Red Sox teams he played with. He can also finger the problem that probably kept those powerhouse clubs of the late forties from winning a string of pennants.

"We had an outstanding infield of (Johnny) Pesky, (Vern) Stephens, (Bobby) Doerr and Billy Goodman. Billy was the best first baseman I ever played with."

"The only thing we lacked in 1948, 1949 and 1950, is that we didn't have a Joe Page. If we had him, we'd have won the pennant by ten games. We just didn't have anybody who could go in there in relief and stop them. The Yankees of those days had great talent, great ball players. And Joe Page in the bullpen."

"The bullpen is the name of the game now. It's a game when you pay a pitcher a fabulous salary to pitch six innings and you give another guy a ton of money to do what the starting guy was paid for in the first place."

"I think you are more apt to see complete games with the designated hitter than you'd see without it. I don't know the relationship between the National and American Leagues on the number of complete games. I can see a lot of plusses to the designated hitter from the point of view of the fans and I can see a lot of minuses from the point of view of artistry. I think the DH rule has allowed players to stay in baseball as major leaguers who might be major league hitters but not major league players. But as long as I work for an outfit that likes it, I'm going to like it."

Tebbetts raises an interesting point about pitcher strike out totals, one brought right up to date when Roger Clemens set an all-time record by striking out 20 Seattle Mariners at Fenway in April.

"I don't know how you're going to say a guy named Jones in the National League strikes out 25 more men than a guy named Smith in the American League, when a pitcher in the National League gets up to bat three or four times a game times 35 games played. Therefore, that's up to 150 pitchers he's pitching to and he'll probably strike out half of them. I deduct that on the strikeout figures."

While he knows present Red Sox catcher Rich Gedman might eventually bump him off the club's all-time favorite list, Birdie doesn't stint in his praise of the improving young receiver.

"There used to be a yardstick we would put on players. If a young player starts in professional baseball and gets to the majors in his third year, he's got a chance to be a great one. If he becomes a regular on a ball club in his fourth year, he's going to be better than average. If it takes him longer than that, then he's going to be a working man's player. (For the record, Gedman reached the Red Sox in his third season of organized ball and began catching regularly in his fourth year.)

"In the case of Gedman, I think you've got a good one. He's got the power, he looks like a catcher and he can't run. So I welcome him into the club. But he's a schedule player, too. It's great to have a guy who can catch every day so that he really knows every pitcher, because every pitcher is different. He has to know how they think and they in turn have to know how he thinks."

Life hasn't always been easy for the affable Tebbetts. He was managing the Indians 21 years ago when he suffered a heart attack.

"That's the only day of the year that the Tebbetts family has an anniversary party, April Fools Day. I was taken to the hospital and had a couple of more (attacks) there. But I survived. I didn't have any surgery and I returned to work fairly rapidly. Cleveland Clinic ran a heart catheter on me and found the problem. If it happened today, they would have operated on me and cleaned up the artery or put something in there."

So how come he's still working a full schedule 21 years after a series of heart attacks, present age notwithstanding? "I never had been a rounder. (a word meaning a party-going type, a word that went out with the Pierce Arrow) And it's too late to start now."

"I smoked until my heart attack, I have never smoked since. I drank until I thought one day I was drinking too much and I quit. I pay attention to my doctors and when they tell me to do something, I do it. I think they (the doctors) are working for me."

"If I feel tired, and I don't feel tired any more often now than I did 21 years ago, I just quit whatever it is that I'm doing and I rest. I just thank the Lord for giving me time to see my grandchildren."

The journey began on April 16 with a 6-3 win in Washington and ended in St. Louis on October 15 with a 4-3 loss. A lot happened along the way.

April 16 — The pattern was set, Hughson was the winning pitcher. Williams hit one of his patented home runs. York contributed a couple of hits and Doerr, Pesky and DiMaggio sparkled in the field as Boston defeated Washington 6-3.

April 22 — Pesky was beamed at Fenway and Eddie Pellagrini, a Roxbury native, replaced him hitting a home run in his first at bat to beat the Senators 5-4.

April 24 — Putting on a power show the Yankees routed four Sox pitchers in a 12-5 win at Fenway as Williams hit into 3 D.P.'s. The Sox set a Fenway record of 144,557 cash customers for their first six home dates.

April 25 — Led by rookie Pellagrini's homer, double and triple the Sox reversed the previous day's 12-5 score and began a 15 game winning streak. Boston papers appealed to Sox fans not to boo Williams — the appeal was effective.

April 26 — After being routed twice Ferriss shut out the A's 7-0 on six hits, indicating he was back into his 1945 form.

April 28 — Hughson and Harris pitched twin wins 2-1, 5-1 over the A's as the Sox went into 1st place where they remained for the rest of the season.

May 3 — Sox announced they would install lights at Fenway Park for the '47 season. Interest jumped to the point where telephone reservations could not be accepted because of the jamming of the switchboard.

May 4 — Pesky connected for 11 straight hits in two days vs Cleveland.

May 7 — Substitute Culberson's 14th inning grand slam gave the Sox a 10-6 win over St. Louis.

May 8 — Pesky set an A.L. record scoring six runs in a 14-10 win over Chicago.

May 9 — Pitcher Bob Klinger signed after his release by Pittsburgh.

May 10 — Despite Joe DiMaggio's grand slam the Red Sox won their 15th consecutive game behind Joe Dobson and Earl Johnson 5-4 in New York, before a crowd of 64,183.

May 11 — A 2-0 New York win ended the Sox 15 game win streak.

May 12 — 68,193 fans packed Yankee Stadium as the Sox won behind Mickey Harris 3-1. Harris was named Player of the Week. A record 176,093 fans saw the 3 game Yankee series.

May 14 — Ferriss used only 78 pitches to post a 3-0, two-hit win over Chicago.

May 18 — An 18-8 win at St. Louis gave Harris his 7th consecutive win. Williams hit a grand slam. Pesky, York and Wagner each had two doubles.

May 19 — Sox purchased 3B Pinky Higgins from Detroit.

May 30 — Sox took two games from Washington at Fenway Park as an estimated 10,000 fans were turned away. Sox were 21-6 for the month, 32-9 overall.

June 5 — A western club came close to a first season win at Fenway when the St. Louis Browns settled for a tie as rain/darkness halted play at 8-8.

June 8,9 — Sox completed a three game sweep over the World Champion Detroit Tigers by the one-sided scores of 15-4, 7-1 and 11-6. Ferriss' record became 10-0.

June 11 — Klinger won in relief, 10-5, vs. Cleveland to make record, 41-9.

June 12 — Red Sox 12 game winning streak ended by Cleveland's Bob Feller 7-2, the first western club victory at Fenway of the season. 33,534 showed up for the mid-week game.

June 29 — On the 28th Williams hit his 20th home run. On the 29th his triple and double in two at bats gave him the league batting lead with a .361 average. Eight Sox were named to the All-Star team — Williams (LF), York (1B), Doerr (2B), Pesky (SS), DiMaggio (CF), Wagner (C), and pitchers Harris and Ferriss.

July 2 — The largest night crowd (to date) in major league history, 68,617, paid to see the Yankees defeat the Sox 2-1 at New York.

July 8 — At the half-way point the Red Sox were 54-23 with a 7½ game lead over New York.

July 9 — In the All-Star game at Fenway Park Williams went 4-4 with two home runs — a 4th inning blast off Kirby Higbe and an 8th inning round tripper off a Rip Sewell "blooper" pitch.

Infielder Don Gutteridge was purchased from Toledo.

July 14 — Williams enjoyed one of his finest days. In the first game of a double-header sweep over Cleveland at Fenway he hit three home runs (including a grand slam), for a total of 25, and drove in eight runs. His performance overshadowed Cleveland's Lou Boudreau who hit four doubles and a homer. In the second game the famous "Boudreau Shift" against Williams was born.

July 21 — Williams again put on a one-man batting show to lead the Sox to a double win over St. Louis. He had seven consecutive hits, including a home run, triple and two doubles. In the 2nd game he hit for the cycle. Ferriss registered his 5th shutout of the season.

July 23 — Outfielder Wally Moses was obtained from the Chicago White Sox.

July 27 — York tied a major league record with 10 RBI, hitting two grand slams in a 13-6 win over the Browns.

July 31 — Cleveland's Bob Feller one-hit the Sox in a 4-1 win.

August 4 — Doerr hit a grand slam homer and had 7 RBI in a 9-4 win at Detroit.

August 11 — The Sox split a twin-bill with New York at Yankee Stadium before 72,320 cash customers to hold a 13-game lead.

August 13 — Ferriss reached 20 victories with a 7-5 win at Philadelphia.

August 16 — A crowd of 29,226 at Fenway Park pushed the home paid attendance to a new all-time home record of 1,015,425, as Harris (15-5) beat the Yankees, 4-1.

August 26 — In a game at Fenway Park the Cleveland Indians tried to use a midget to play 3rd base.

August 29 — Pesky overtook Williams for second in the A.L. batting race .341 to .340. Washington's Mickey Vernon led the league at .342.

September 2 — The Red Sox eliminated the Yankees as Ferriss won the first game of a Labor Day doubleheader 5-2 for his 12th straight win and 24th of the season. Harris (16-7) won the second game 3-1. It was Boston's 14th doubleheader win of the season. (They lost none and split 13). 73,551 attended to boost the season total for the 20 games with New York to 759,498. The Sox led by 15½ games.

September 13 — In a Friday afternoon game the Sox mathematically clinched the pennant at Cleveland with a 1-0 win. Hughson won his 18th as Williams hit the only inside-the-park home run of his career in the 1st inning. The Sox had been delayed from clinching by six straight losses.

September 15 — Ferriss beat Chicago 4-1 for his 25th win.

September 26 — The Sox and Yankees played an exhibition game at East Douglas, Mass. to celebrate that town's 200th anniversary. The Yanks won 8-7 and the players were showered with gifts.

September 27 — A 5-4 win over Washington at Fenway gave Hughson 20 wins. It was also the Sox 104th and final regular season victory.

September 29 — Pesky's two hits made his season total a league-high 208.

October 1, 2, 3 — The Red Sox played a series of games against an All-Star team of American Leaguers while awaiting completion of the National League playoff between Brooklyn and St. Louis prior to the World Series. In the first of these games Williams was hit on the elbow by a pitch from Mickey Haefner and forced to leave the game. Many believe it was this injury that hampered the sluggers' performance in the World Series. The Sox won October 1, 2-0, lost October 2, 4-2, and won October 3, 4-1.

Meanwhile the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Brooklyn Dodgers in a best-of-three playoff to earn the right to play the Red Sox in what became an exciting seven-game World Series. Unfortunately the Cardinals won the seventh and deciding game 4-3 for the World Championship.

BEHIND THE SCENES

by Dick Dew

The fans think of baseball as a constantly changing scene with personnel coming and going all the time. But there are people active today in the Red Sox organization who have been with the club for a lifetime.

Three of those long-time employees in the front office at Fenway Park have a total of 125 years with the ball club. They are ticket director Arthur Moscato, controller John Reilly and switchboard operator Helen Robinson.

They've seen it all over the years, working day-to-day through pennant seasons and the in-between years. But all three are staunch fans, each expecting another victory in every game and a pennant at the end of the season.

Helen Robinson joined the Red Sox organization on Sept. 2, 1941 as combination receptionist and switchboard operator and has been answering the telephones ever since as a pleasant and efficient kind of inside voice of the Red Sox.

There's no way of telling how many calls she has handled over the years but her modern panel lights up like a miniature Christmas tree on game dates when the weather is questionable.

"I used to answer everything when we had the cords and jacks, but the ticket office gets direct calls now and some of our people have direct lines."

Miss Robinson, whose fenced-off switchboard has been located in several different places in Fenway over the years, recalls that some of her busiest days used to be the football game dates on Saturdays years ago when Fenway was used by college teams.

"We still get calls for baseball tickets when those lines are busy and of course most of the outgoing calls are placed through the board as well. I've been doing it for so long I know most of the people we are calling.

JOHN REILLY, HELEN ROBINSON AND ARTHUR MOSCATO

"The hardest thing sometimes is to locate our own people who move all over the ball park. In the old days, because Mr. Yawkey always wanted to know where somebody was at that time, they had to check in with me before leaving their offices.

"I got to know most of the players years ago because if they had a question or a problem, they'd come upstairs to see whomever was in charge. Ted Williams, Bobby Doerr, Charlie Wagner, Tex Hughson, Johnny Pesky, all of the players from the 40's are all old friends.

"That's pretty much changed now, the players don't come up here much any more, they have to deal through their agents.

"And, of course, we have a lot more people in the front office now than we did forty years ago. We had just a handful in those days."

Arthur Moscato joined the Red Sox organization as a ticket clerk on April 24, 1946, part of a fulltime staff of six under then ticket manager Mary Cadigan. He became ticket director in 1968 and has been directly responsible for the sale and distribution of millions of Red Sox baseball tickets over the years.

"Group sales are separate now but the job has really not changed that much over the years, though it is more automated now. But the tickets still have to be handled individually.

"I always say we have the toughest job in baseball because we're located at street level and more accessible to the public because of our physical setup. As a result, we hear everything the fans have to say, even if they slipped on a banana peel. We bear the brunt of everything that happens in the ball park, we're the front line here.

"Back in 1946, we worked in the concession offices to open the World Series ticket mail. I remember an old newsreel film taken of that scene, the postal guys handling the mail. It was black and white with no sound and it was unbelievable.

"The tickets are printed by computer now and applications for tickets from season ticket holders are handled that way too so post-season sales are a whole easy new ball game."

But the same problems that plagued the ticket office forty years ago are still there today. When a game date coincides with a promotional day or a hot pitcher is scheduled to work, the ticket staff has to be expanded to avoid long lines in the relatively small office. But the weather, particularly a forecast of rain, can change all that at the last minute.

"I listen to all the forecasts and call the weather bureau but the weather is always a big factor in this department.

We do a bigger telephone business now for reservations but they've still got to be picked up so we still have that direct contact with the fans."

John Reilly joined the Red Sox organization as an accounting clerk on March 18, 1946. Reilly, fresh from military service, has been in the accounting department ever since and two years ago was named the club's controller.

"I used to tell Joe Cronin I brought the club a pennant, it was the luck of the Irish. And I really thought the team was going to win again last year, do then what it is doing now."

Reilly, who spent seven years of working and earning his accounting degree from Northeastern, was part of a full-time accounting staff of four, and baseball was just 16 teams, when he joined up.

"We adopted the same computer system that runs the scoreboard and we have six fulltime employees in accounting now.

"We don't have much personal contact with the players or the public in our department but it is a year-round operation. When other departments quiet down around the first of the year, ours heats up with closing the books and audits."

Reilly, a baseball fan as a kid who could "recite all the averages," works a relatively normal 9 to 5 schedule but still manages to see 90 per cent of the home games.

"That's because most of the games now are played at night and I've never lost interest in watching them play. My mother used to walk me over from Mission Hill when I was a kid, less than a mile away, but that is the only thing that has changed."

Reilly has strong memories of the 40's and the stars who played for the Red Sox in 1946 but can look back on pennant years like 1967 and remember warning Jim Lonborg against going skiing.

"I broke both my legs in four places skiing and I told Lonborg not to do it before his injury.

"I have always felt I was very lucky because I was a baseball nut as a kid and I walked in here off the street and got a job in baseball. I made up my mind to work in something I loved or go to school and I ended up doing both."

Switchboard operator, ticket director, controller — three positions on a professional team usually unnoticed by the public, but very important to the overall operation of a major league baseball organization.

America's #1 Roast Beef Restaurant Salutes Baseball's RBI Leaders.

THE START OF A NEW TRADITION.

A new tradition begins this season as Arby's, an official sponsor of Major League Baseball, recognizes the RBI leaders in both the American and National leagues with the all new Arby's RBI award. This marks the first time Major League Baseball's RBI leaders will be officially recognized with their own award. Arby's will present the award each year at the World Series to both league leaders.

GOING TO BAT FOR KIDS

At Arby's, we also want to make a better life for children everywhere. So, we are giving the Big Brothers/Big Sisters Organization $1,000 for every RBI generated each season by the National and American league RBI leaders. Based on past RBI performance, this will add up to at least $250,000 each year for Big Brothers/Big Sisters. On our team, every kid's a winner!

LOCAL ARBY'S RBI AWARDS

Arby's will also present the award to the RBI leaders of each Major League team and selected minor league and amateur teams. Check your sports section and your local Arby's for further news about local Arby's RBI awards and updates on the national program.
